

Prof. Antonio Lasalvia

Department of Neuroscience, Biomedicine and Movement
University of Verona-Verona Hospital Trust AOUI, Verona, Italy

Prof. Antonio Lasalvia (MD, PhD) is Associate Professor of Psychiatry at Department of Neuroscience, Biomedicine and Movement Sciences, University of Verona (Italy). He works as honorary Consultant Psychiatrist at the Psychiatric Unit, Verona University Hospital Trust; he also coordinates the clinical activity of the South-Verona Community-based Mental Health Center. His main fields of interest include epidemiological and social psychiatry, mental health service evaluation, assessment of outcome of psychiatric disorders, first-episode psychoses, research on stigma and discrimination, research on the psychological impact of COVID-19 pandemic on healthcare professionals and other vulnerable populations. With this latter regard, Prof. Lasalvia participated as PI in a number EU funded multisite research projects. He is Associated Editor of Epidemiology and Psychiatric Sciences and has served as reviewer for a number of international psychiatric journals. Prof. Lasalvia has presented at several national and international meetings and have been invited to deliver teaching modules nationally and internationally. He currently the president of the Veneto Section of the Italian Psychiatric Society and treasurer of the International Federation of Psychiatric Epidemiology (IFPE). His research activity has so far resulted in 240 papers published on national and international peer reviewed journals; papers published on peer-reviewed journals have been cited 3422 times in the international literature (Citation Index) according to ISI Web of Science (h-index = 29); 3329 times according to SCOPUS (h-index = 33); and 5263 times according to Google Scholar (h-index = 38).